

BROTOLOC NORTH
OAK VIEW II CBRF
PROGRAM STATEMENT

Revised 10/31/19

Description:

Oak View II is a Class A CBRF designed to serve up to five (5) adults, 18 years or older, with mental illness, developmental disabilities, or behavioral problems. It is located at S10580 Cty. Trk. B, Eleva, Wisconsin, 54738. The administrator of this facility is the Regional Director of the Eau Claire Region, the Program Manager of the facility is responsible for the day to day operation. If the program manager or Director are unavailable, the Assistant manager is the next in line and the back-up staff after that. Their numbers are posted and available at the facility.

Oak View II is a unique living environment in Eleva that safely serves male persons who live with the effects of mental illness, developmental disabilities or behavioral problems. From our history clients that have problems with mental health disorders sometimes may also have some Intellectual/Developmental Disabilities, and are on medications that can and do help with one or both issues and need support that can help with both issues. It's smaller size and location in the country creates a warm, home-like environment, which allows for more personal attention and facilitation of integration into the community.

Admission Policy:

Residents considered for admission to Oak View II must be compatible with each other.

Residents must be ambulatory, and must be able to follow directions so that they can take action in emergency situations.

Oak View II welcomes individuals who exhibit challenging behaviors, but may exclude persons who are actively suicidal, who present a chronic and severe danger to themselves or others, and/or who are destructive of property, unless an Individual Service Plan identifies the areas of risk and serves as a reasonable plan to minimize these risks. Initial referral and assessment information must be at Oak View II on admission of the resident.

Within 90 days prior to admission, each resident must be examined by a physician or registered nurse and found to be free of communicable disease. Documentation of this examination is required prior to admission of resident.

Program Goals:

The overall goal at Oak View II is to promote successful community reintegration for our clients, providing a therapeutic environment that promotes and supports individual preferences, choices and goals.

Oak View II assists residents in being, to the greatest degree possible, active and contributing members of their community. Both the resident and the significant persons in the resident's life, such as the guardian, case managers and family members, are encouraged to participate in ongoing and goal-directed service planning. Everyday living experiences that occur within the naturally occurring residential and community environment are utilized to foster use of strengths and functional abilities, and to provide opportunities for natural relationships.

Specific Program Goals Include:

1. Reintegration of resident in personal care activities such as dressing, grooming, and bathing.
2. Reintegrating resident in daily living skills such as meal planning and preparation, laundry, household chores, and taking public transportation.
3. Reintegrating residents in appropriate socialization, including productive and independent leisure time, one-on-one interaction, and small group activities.
4. Assisting residents in understanding and expressing their emotions and feelings, focusing on building good self-esteem and a sense of self worth.
5. Encouraging and helping residents in maintaining involvement with family members and other significant people in their lives.
6. Accurately assessing and responding to the unique and changing needs of each resident.

Behavioral Programming:

The emphasis of behavioral programming is two fold: first, prevention and redirection or de-escalation of ineffective behaviors and second, teaching effective behavior. In order to prevent ineffective behaviors, staff observe the effects of the environmental demands on the resident and then control for the demands that result in ineffective behavior. Confusion and frustration, resulting from excessive environmental demands on impaired brain functioning, often lead to such behaviors as aggressiveness, destructiveness and lack of behavioral control. When appropriate, the resident's environment will be structured to reduce confusion and frustration by minimizing common distractions such as background noise, movement, clutter and harsh colors; by increasing predictability in daily routines; by decreasing demands that stress the resident's current coping skills; and by matching expectations to the resident's current abilities and interests. In addition, redirecting or de-escalating ineffective behaviors as they occur may be necessary for clients who have difficulties in self-regulation and control. Examples of strategies that may be utilized include removing the source of the problem; diverting the resident's attention with a novel stimulus change; decreasing environmental stimulation; talking the resident through relaxation techniques; and modeling calm, slow, objective, positive, and controlled behavior. Concurrently, effective behaviors are taught to replace ineffective behaviors. Behavioral programming may include increasing motivation through connection to personal goals; proceeding from external supports to internal control; increasing insight into behavior, identifying, preventing and teaching social skills and providing opportunities to practice these skills; and educating significant others.

Community Reintegration:

The typical goals of the client is to become an active and contributing member of both their family and community; therefore, successful reintegration is the primary focus of the program. Functional community reintegration occurs at Oak View II and public settings and addresses the client’s history, the varied patterns of abilities and dysfunction’s that exist, the clients personal goals, and the community setting. Functional reintegration strategies that are successful may include structuring tasks for success through environmental engineering and staff support, providing routine and structure with the client’s schedule of alertness and attention span; pairing new learning with old familiar tasks and concepts, providing concrete cues and feedback through the most effective sensory mode prior to, during, and after natural learning situation; and providing numerous practice sessions and opportunities to use skills in the natural environment. Community reintegration is promoted at Oak View II by encouraging residents to utilize existing community resources that incorporate novel mainstream situations rather than groups and activities specifically designed for the disabled. These may include continuing education, job coaching and the opportunity for meaningful employment in the community.
